Why I'm running

FUND RESEARCH. FIND A CURE.

My Story

My name is Loryanne Bessette and I am a 23-year-old student at Queen's University. I was diagnosed with epilepsy when I was 14.

Epilepsy does not only come with a diagnosis but with so much more. There's a large stigma surrounding epilepsy and negative stereotypes based on misconceptions. Although I am working towards being comfortable with my diagnosis, these stigmas still make me feel ashamed and fearful of rejection from others. To date I avoid certain social situations and hide my condition from friends. On the daily, not only am I worried about the possibility of having a seizure and dealing with the side effects of my medication, but I live with fear of SUDEP (Sudden Unexpected Death in Epilepsy).
